Wendy's wins Twitter beef, gets toasted by internet

By The Associated Press
Jan. 04, 2017

Wendy's is winning kudos on social media for its amusing beef with a Twitter troll.

It started Monday when a Twitter user accused the fast food chain of lying about using "fresh, never frozen" beef for its hamburgers. After Wendy's reiterated its fresh beef policy , the user asked if the company delivered it raw on a hot truck. Wendy's rhetorically asked the user where cold things are stored that aren't frozen. The user responded with a claim that McDonald's served a better breakfast, to which Wendy's said , "You don't have to bring them into this just because you forgot refrigerators existed for a second there."
